THE GRAND LODGE MEETING.

Interest Felt in the Elections to Be Held at the Meeting in December-Offices Over Which There May Be

The fall of the year is always an active period in Masonry, and this year is no exception. The Masonic brethren who during the heated period, and have consequently absented themselves from several of the monthly communications, begin again to attend the sessions of their respective lodges, and matters at the Temple begin to assume a more lively aspect. There is always more work to be done in lodges in the fall and winter than in the other seasons. More candidates offer themselves for the various degrees, and altogether there is more activity. Of course, this activity does not extend to all of the lodges. They, like any other institutions, have their periods of successes and reverses, and while some of the lodges may be on the topmost rounds of success, with an abundance of new material on which to work, others are apparently on the decline, and a candidate for a degree is an unknown quan-

A SUCCESSFUL LODGE.

Just at present the lodge which is attracting most attention in this city is Richmond, No. 19, which last week raised five candidates to the sublime degree of Master Mason. This lodge has been increasing in membership at an astonishingly rapid rate for some months, and an article of almost unpresendently properly. has dawned for it.

Colonel Henry M. Boykin is master of Colonel Henry M. Boykin is master of No. 10, and its success is largely due to his indefatigable efforts in its behalf. A Masonic lodge is always dependent to a large degree on its master, and Colonel Boykin has done much toward making No. 10 prominent. Besides being prominent for its large membership. No. 10 is noted for the beauty with which its work it done, and its communications are always attended by a very large continalways attended by a very large contin-gent from the other lodges in the city. GRAND LODGE MEETING.

The Grand Lodge will assemble in Richmond on the first Tuesday in December, when legislation for the government of the various lodges throughout the State will be enacted, and other business will be trunsacted. The Grand Lodge usually cemains in session for three days, and it remains in session for three days, and it is understood that considerable business will occupy its attention this year. Owing to the death of two of the officers of the to the death of two of the officers of the Grand Lodge the body has been practically reorganized since its last meeting here, and much interest among Masons centres in the election of officers for the next year. There are apt to be many changes, and several of the places will be hotly contested for among brother Masons.

Colonel L. E. Ettraverald on attorney of Colonel J. F. Fitzgerald, an attorney of Farmville, is Grand Master, and as he has only served one year, and the custom generally observed is for the Grand Masgenerally observed is for the Grand Master to serve at least two years, he will in all probability succeed himself. The next ranking officer is that of Deputy Grand Master, now filled by Major A. R. Courtney, of this city, who will probably suceed himself. The office of Grand Senior Warden, made vacant by the recent death of Mr. F. A. Read, of Alexandria, has not yet been filled, but will probably be when the supreme body meets by the promotion of Grand-Junior-Warden Judge R. T. W. Duke, of Charlottesville.

Mr. George W. Wright, of Marion, the Grand Junior Deacon, will in all proba-bility he shoved up to the office of Grand Junior Warden, and he in turn will, most likely be succeeded by Mr. H. O. Kerns, of Sutherlin, the Grand Junior Deacon. SECRETARY AND TREASURER.

By the death of Mr. William B. Isaacs, Sr., the offices of Grand Secretary and Grand Treasurer were made vacant, and the Grand Master appointed to the former Major J. V. Bidgood, of this city, and to the latter, Colonel Fred. Pleasants, also of Richmond. Both of these gantlemen are very popular in Masonic circles, but when the Grand Lodge meets they will perhaps find several other aspirants for the positions they now hold. Some of those who will contest for these places will have a strong following, and the fight for the positions, while it will be amicably carried on, will, it is expected, be quite heated.

The other officers of the Grand Lodge are the Rey George W. Dame, of Dan-

are the Rev. George W. Dame, of Dan-ville, Chaplain; Pursuivant, Junius A. Cosby, of Richmond; Grand Tiler, W. C. Wilkinson, of Richmond, and Grand Steward, William Krause, of Richmond, These officers will probably not be dis-turbed. The proceedings of the Grand Lodge

are always of a most intersting charac ter. The lodge will be opened on the first night with the usual Masonic cerefirst right with the usual Masonic cere-monies, and the Grand Master will read his annual address. This will be referred to a committee, and the various stand-ing committees will then be appoint-ed. Then will follow the reports of committee and the grand officers. On the second day the Grand Commit-tee on Work will exemplify one or more degrees, and when the conclusion of degrees, and, upon the conclusion degrees, and, upon the conclusion of this most interesting work, appeals, if there be any, from the various lodges, will be heard and acted upon. The elec-tion of officers will then be gone into, and on the next day the annual reports and other matters will be considered. The Grand Master will name the fifty district deputy strand masters who are district deputy grand masters, who are to serve for the ensuing year, and the Grand Lodge will adjourn to meet again

Dr. Parker and Miracles. To the Editor of the Dispatch: If Dr. Parker would confine his diag-If Dr. Parker would confine his diagnosis to his own profession he would continue to illustrate success. Because I essayed to emphasize that miracle is a condition of all eras, and that it also has its logic, it is not a sequence that I do not believe in miracle and am ergo an infidel, and should be dosed with a pamphiet to Deists. Neither is Locke on the Understanding exactly the pabulum to be profered, for no innate ideas, no to be proffered, for no innate ideas, no natural depravity, no heredity. He three down the gauntlet when he claimed-a reason for investigation-that he did not believe in miracle at the present day, virtually claiming that where logic exists miracle ceases. I claim that miracle (phenomena) has its logic, and logic has its phenomena. The former is an effect where the cause is not apparent, but which science will slowly evoke. A belief which science will slowly evoke. A belief in this will be a principle in the new theology. Every essay of science here brings forward some new, grand, holy, occult truth, which confirms some other truth in Scripture. Suppose the logic to answered prayer resolved itself into a force which was a divine telepathy between God and the suppleant, would the discovery make it less a phenomenon? Does the prism make the rainbow less the "Bow of Promise"? Is minacle confined to the past? Is prophecy a gift only to ancient days? Not the prophecy which feasons from cause to effect, but the divine God-given faculty which knows and knows not why it knows. and knows not why it knows, save for the possession of a newly-appearing mind province. Logic has its phenomena. What but divine power can trace the negus between cause and effect? Chemistry can give the elements, but in the combination an elusive something, God, defies its identity with nature.

As I have no doubt of the explanation of the occurrence in Georgia, a trip will
